UNU Mission:

The UNU is an international community of scholars, engaged in research, postgraduate training and dissemination of knowledge in furthering the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations. The mission of the UNU is to contribute, through research and capacity building, to efforts to resolve the pressing global problems that are the concern of the United Nations and its Member States. Key goals are to serve as an international community of scholars; a bridge between the United Nations and the international academic community; and as a think-tank for the United Nations system; to contribute to capacity building, particularly in developing countries; and to serve as a platform for new and creative ideas.

UNU-IAS Objectives:

UNU-IAS was inaugurated in April 1996. It conducts research, postgraduate education and capacity development, both in-house and in co-operation with an interactive network of academic institutions and international organisations. The thematic direction of UNU-IAS concerns the interactions of social and natural systems. The current research agenda focuses on strategic paths to sustainable development and under this broad theme projects focus on biodiversity, sustainable development governance, urban ecosystems, science and technology policy options for developing and least developed countries, and sustainable development education. More information on UNU-IAS, its programme of activities and academic community is available at www.ias.unu.edu.

About UNU-IAS OUIK:

The United Nations University Institute of Advanced Studies Operating Unit Ishikawa/Kanazawa (OUIK) was established in April 2008 as the first UNU operating unit in Asia and the sixth globally. It is a strategic think tank whose mission is to link local knowledge to global issues.

Responsibilities:

The Research Fellow will be expected to be fully involved in the academic activities of UNU-IAS and OUIK and to develop a strong research programme in the area of marine governance and coastal management. The ongoing UNU-IAS activities in the area of marine and coastal governance encompass issues related to biodiversity and its management of the oceans and coasts, including topics of relevance to climate change and preservation of coastal communities. The incumbent will spend substantial amount of time carrying out research and research supervision, as well as fundraising efforts. The Fellow will report to the Directors of UNU-IAS and UNU-IAS OUIK.

Required Qualifications:

- Ph.D. (no ABDs) in social or environmental sciences or in natural and health sciences who have worked in the policy interface
- Demonstrated research experience in marine and coastal issues
- A sound record or potential for publication in areas related to biodiversity and its management of oceans and coasts
- Research management skills and teaching experience are desirable
- Ability to prepare funding proposals
- Fluency in English is essential and fluency in Japanese is strongly desired. A working knowledge of other UN official languages is an advantage

Applications from women and candidates originating from developing countries are encouraged.

Remuneration: This is a full-time position on a contractual basis and a locally recruited post. A monthly stipend can range from JPY 350,000 to 450,000, depending on the candidate's academic qualifications and years of work experience.

Duration of Contract:

Initial contract on a Personnel Service Agreement (PSA) for the first year, with the possibility of renewal based on good performance and subject to requirements.

Application Procedure:

Interested applicants are encouraged to electronically send their application materials. The application consists of:

- A cover letter describing how your qualifications and experience match the requirements of the position. Please include the vacancy reference number in the letter.
- A UN University Personal History Form (P.11) accessible on the UN University website (www.unu.edu/employment)
- Full Curriculum Vitae with list of publications and names and contacts, including email addresses of three referees (the referees will be contacted directly by UNU-IAS in the event that the candidate is shortlisted)
- Two publication samples (single author articles or book chapters)

Please send the above documents by email to recruitment@ias.unu.edu by the deadline. Late applications will not be considered. Clearly state the reference number in the subject header.
