The Future of International Environmental Law
EDITED BY DAVID LEARY AND BALAKRISHNA PISUPATI

This book explores the future of international environmental law in a world of ever worsening environmental crises. It examines the success stories and failures of international environmental law and argues that future responses to global environmental crises will be more about good environmental governance than just more treaties and laws. Environmental governance will need to accommodate the needs and aspirations of peoples from developed and developing countries alike, and will have to be based on decisions and actions by a vast range of actors and stakeholders—not just the nation-state that has traditionally dominated environmental diplomacy. This also suggests a need to be cognizant of the close links to other areas of international law, including human rights.

The Future of International Environmental Law tackles the major environmental challenges of our times including climate change, biodiversity loss, and pollution and overfishing of the oceans. It examines what we can learn from the implementation of existing international environmental laws over the past few decades. It also considers a range of emerging issues such as the management of the environmental challenges faced by the Arctic, nanotechnology, biofuels and synthetic genomics.

David Leary is a Senior Research Fellow in the Faculty of Law, University of New South Wales, Sydney, Australia. Balakrishna Pisupati is Coordinator of the Biodiversity, Land Law and Governance Unit, and United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) Focal Point for the Convention on Biological Diversity and the International Year of Biodiversity in the Division of Environmental Law and Conventions, UNEP, Nairobi, Kenya.

Table of contents:
Introduction, David Leary and Balakrishna Pisupati

Part I: The experience to date
Climate change and pollution: Addressing intersecting threats to oceans, coasts and small island developing states, Ann Powers
Biodiversity, Susan Shearing
Implementation of environmental legal regimes at regional level: The case of the Mediterranean Sea, Tullio Scovazzi
Non-lawyers and legal regimes: Public participation for ecologically sustainable development, Donna Craig and Michael Jeffery
Human rights and the environment, Gudmundur Alfredsson

Part II: International legal regimes in transition
Development and the future of climate change law, Michael B. Gerrard and Dionysia-Theodora Avgerinopoulou
A new ocean to govern: Drawing on lessons from marine management to govern the emerging Arctic Ocean, Timo Koivurova and Sébastien Duyck
Moving beyond the tragedy of the global commons: The Grotian legacy and the future of sustainable management of the biodiversity of the high seas, Rosemary Rayfuse

Part III: New emerging issues for international environmental law
Emerging technologies: Nanotechnology, David Leary and Balakrishna Pisupati
Legal frameworks for emerging technologies: Bioenergy, Richard L. Ottinger and Victor M. Tafur
Synthetic biology and synthetic genomics, Michele S. Garfinkel and Robert M. Friedman
Conclusion, David Leary and Balakrishna Pisupati
“This impressive volume shines light on the increasing importance of civil society in developing countries of Asia and Africa, where both national and global governability are under tremendous pressure in the aftermath of the financial crisis. Cheema and Popovski have brought together high level specialists dealing with legal, social and accountability issues which enable democratic processes in countries that potentially can benefit greatly from the massive global power shift from developed to emerging economies.”

Building Trust in Government
Innovations in Governance Reform in Asia

EDITED BY G. SHABBIR CHEEMA AND VESSELIN POPOVSKI

Trends and Innovations in Governance

The ability of governments and the global community to achieve the Millennium Development Goals, ensure security and promote adherence to basic standards of human rights depends on people’s trust in their governments. However, public trust in government and political institutions has been declining in both developing and developed countries in the new millennium. One of the challenges in promoting trust in government is to engage citizens, especially marginalized groups and the poor, into the policy process to ensure that governance is truly representative, participatory and benefits all members of society. Where governance processes are exclusionary and basic services are not accessible, intrastate conflicts and violence within the country can negatively impact national and global security and peace. Weak systems and processes of governance tend to erode trust in government. Within this context, the issue of how to build trust in government and trust between socio-economic actors has emerged as an increasingly important issue in both developed and developing economies.

This book seeks to answer many of the questions raised in reference to means of strengthening trust in government within the Asia-Pacific region. Through analyses of trends within Northeast Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia and the Pacific Islands, and specific innovations and reforms at the country level, the contributors provide perspectives on the causes of the decline in trust, countries and institutions that have managed to maintain higher degrees of confidence, and governance innovations and practices that have played an important role in strengthening trust once it has faltered.

G. Shabbir Cheema is Director, Asia-Pacific Governance and Democracy Initiative (AGDI) and Senior Fellow, East-West Center, Honolulu, Hawaii. Vesselin Popovski is Senior Academic Programme Officer and Head of Section “Peace and Security”, Institute for Sustainability and Peace at the United Nations University, Tokyo.

Table of contents:

Building trust in government: An introduction, G. Shabbir Cheema
Building trust in government: Linking theory with practice, Peride K. Blind
Building trust in government in Northeast Asia, Pan Suk Kim
Building trust in government in Southeast Asia, Ledivina V. Cariño
Building trust in government in South Asia, Sajjad Naseer
Trust in government in the Pacific Islands, Meredith Rowen and Gerard A. Finin
Trust in government: Evidence from China, Teresa Wright
Building trust in government in the Republic of Korea: The case of the National Tax Service reforms, Byong Seob Kim
Promoting trust in government: The case of Indonesia, Prijono Tjiptotherijanto and Meredith Rowen
Building trust in government in Timor-Leste: The roles and strategies of United Nations missions, Suhehiro Hasegawa
Conclusion: Trust is a must in government, Vesselin Popovski

“This volume is an excellent and timely contribution to the ongoing debate on government and governance in Asia. In a creative and credible way it goes beyond the discussion on democratization in Asia, and contributes a deep analysis of current trends as well as to the generic debate on trust in government. In doing so it operates in the nexus of policy and research, being relevant and necessary for a wide audience.”

Cross-Border Governance in Asia
Regional Issues and Mechanisms

EDITED BY G. SHABBIR CHEEMA, CHRISTOPHER A. MCNALLY AND VESSELIN POPOVSKI

Trends and Innovations in Governance

Rapid globalization has led to increased flows of capital, services, ideas, information and people between countries. As such, problems and challenges that face one nation often have a rippling impact throughout the region and globally. The growing list of cross-border issues cannot be resolved by isolated policy action at the national or sub-national levels. It is essential to forge strategic alliances at the regional level which support the development of consolidated approaches through regional platforms for dialogue and action.

This book discusses regional governance mechanisms and institutional arrangements to respond to emerging cross-border issues and trends in Asia and the Pacific, such as the movement of people including refugees and illegal migrants, regional trade integration for human development, effective and efficient water management, human trafficking, and health focusing on infectious disease surveillance and response. Cross-Border Governance in Asia considers the following questions: What are the key cross-border governance issues in Asia? What are the regional governance mechanisms to cope with these issues? How effective are the regional mechanisms and national institutional capacities in responding to these issues? What is the impact of governance on the cross-border issues in Asia? What factors contribute to the success or failure of the mechanisms for regional cooperation?

"I believe that this edited book is a timely contribution to the discussion on globalization within the Asia and Pacific Region. Its focus on the cross-border challenges of migration, disease, trade, water, and human trafficking provides a comprehensive argument for governments, civil societies, and even the private sector to contribute solving a crop of new cross-border challenges. What makes this volume compelling is its link to the structures of governance through which these players can play a useful role."

Political Violence in South and Southeast Asia

Critical Perspectives

EDITED BY ITTY ABRAHAM, EDWARD NEWMAN AND MEREDITH L. WEISS

This volume explores the sources and manifestations of political violence in South and Southeast Asia and the myriad roles that it plays in everyday life and as a part of historical narrative. It considers and critiques the manner in which political violence is understood and constructed, and the common assumptions that prevail regarding the causes, victims and perpetrators of this violence. By focusing on the social and political context of these regions the volume presents a critical understanding of the nature of political violence and provides an alternative narrative to that found in mainstream analysis of “terrorism”.

Political Violence in South and Southeast Asia brings together political scientists and anthropologists with intimate knowledge of the politics and society of these regions. They present unique perspectives on topics including assassinations, riots, state violence, the significance of geographic borders, external influences and intervention, and patterns of recruitment and rebellion.

Itty Abraham is an Associate Professor and Director of the South Asia Institute, University of Texas at Austin. Edward Newman is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Political Science and International Studies, University of Birmingham, UK. Meredith L. Weiss is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science, University at Albany, State University of New York.

Traditional Knowledge in Policy and Practice
Approaches to Development and Human Well-Being

EDITED BY SUNEETHA M. SUBRAMANIAN AND BALAKRISHNA PISUPATI
WITH A FOREWORD BY AHMED DJOGHLAF

Traditional knowledge (TK) has contributed immensely to shaping development and human well-being. Its influence spans a variety of sectors, including agriculture, health, education and governance. However, in today’s world, TK and its practitioners are increasingly under-represented or under-utilized.

This book focuses on the relevance of TK to key environment- and development-related sectors, discusses the current debates within each of these sectors and presents suggestions as to how TK can be effectively integrated with conventional science and policy. A valuable resource to researchers, academics and policymakers, Traditional knowledge in policy and practice provides a comprehensive overview of TK, and its links and contributions to social, economic, environmental, ethical and political issues.

Suneetha M. Subramanian is Research Fellow in the Biodiplomacy Programme, United Nations University Institute of Advanced Studies, Yokohama, Japan. Balakrishna Pisupati is Coordinator of the Biodiversity, Land Law and Governance Unit, and United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) Focal Point for the Convention on Biological Diversity and the International Year of Biodiversity in the Division of Environmental Law and Conventions, UNEP, Nairobi, Kenya.

Contents overview:
Diversities of knowledge communities, their worldviews and sciences: On the challenges of their co-evolution, Bertus Haverkort and Coen Reijntjes
Indigenous knowledge and indigenous peoples’ education, Marie Battiste
Indigenous institutions and contemporary development in Ghana: Potentials and challenges, Stephen B. Kendie and Bernard Y. Guri
Gender and traditional knowledge: Seeing blind spots, redressing inequities for women, Fatima Alvarez Castillo and Maria Nadja A. Castillo
Traditional knowledge, indigenous communities and ethical values, Doris Schroeder
Making space for grandma: The emancipation of traditional knowledge and the dominance of western-style intellectual property rights regimes, Ikechi Mgbeoji
Characteristics, current relevance and retention of traditional knowledge in agriculture, R. Rengalakshmi
Traditional knowledge and health, Gerard Bodeker
Traditional knowledge: From environmental management to territorial development, Guillen Calvo Valderrama and Salvatore Arico
Traditional knowledge and biodiversity: Can the co-evolution of natural and social systems continue?, Suneetha M. Subramanian
Bridging formal and informal governance regimes for effective water management: The role of traditional knowledge, Alphonse Kambu
Integrating traditional knowledge in climate change adaptation, Agni Klintuni Boediharto
Traditional knowledge and economic development: The biocultural dimension, Kabir Bavikatte, Harry Jonas and Johanna von Braun
A practical approach to traditional knowledge and indigenous heritage management: A case study of Moriori heritage management practice, Tom Lanauze, Susan Forbes and Maui Solomon
Conclusion, Suneetha M. Subramanian and Balakrishna Pisupati

“This collection, which comprises chapters by experts from a wide range of backgrounds, including traditional knowledge-holding communities, should leave policymakers in no doubt that protecting TK is not only vital for indigenous peoples but for the common future of all of humanity.”

The Dark Side of Globalization

EDITED BY JORGE HEINE AND RAMESH THAKUR
WITH A FOREWORD BY SASKIA SASSEN

Seen by some as a desirable and irreversible engine of prosperity and progress, globalization is resisted by others as the soft underbelly of a corporate imperialism that plunders and profiteers in the global marketplace. Globalization has brought many benefits, including the reduction of poverty in several countries. But it also has a dark side: the unleashing of negative forces as a result of the compression of time and space made possible by modern technology. Examples include the transnational flows of terrorism, drug and human trafficking, organized crime, money laundering, and global pandemics.

From arms trafficking in West Africa through armed insurgencies in South Asia and the upsurge of jihad in the age of globalization, this book examines the challenges that the dark forces of globalization pose to the international system and the responses they have triggered. Written largely by authors from developing countries, the book’s goal is to help maximize the beneficial consequences of globalization while muting its baleful effects.

"An excellent collection that breaks away from conventional thinking to address globalization’s unsavory elements.” —Diana Tussie, FLACSO, Argentina

Realizing the Development Potential of Diasporas

EDITED BY KRISHNAN SHARMA, ARUN KASHYAP, MANUEL MONTES AND PAUL LADD
WITH A FOREWORD BY ALEXANDER TREPELKOV

In Realizing the Development Potential of Diasporas, a collection of international experts, including academics, policymakers, practitioners from the private sector, and representatives of diaspora communities contribute to furthering our understanding of how the growing population of expatriates from the developing world can promote development in their homelands.

This book covers issues relating to diaspora diversity and its impact on development, the potential of expatriates to further entrepreneurship and business development in their homelands, the effectiveness of remittances in furthering inclusive development and policies to better engage diasporas as drivers of development. Moreover, the analyses in this volume are embellished through examples and case studies focusing on the experiences of specific diaspora networks, home country institutions promoting diaspora engagement, migrant entrepreneurs and financial institutions facilitating remittances. The experts and practitioners contributing to this volume come from a range of public and private organizations and institutions.

Table of contents:

- Foreword, Alexander Trepelkov
- Introduction: Opportunities and challenges for mobilizing the potential of developing country diasporas, Krishnan Sharma, Arun Kashyap, Manuel Montes and Paul Ladd

Part I: Setting the stage

Blood and Borders

The Responsibility to Protect and the Problem of the Kin-State

EDITED BY WALTER KEMP, VESSELIN POPOVSKI AND RAMESH THAKUR

Map lines delineating statehood can become blurred by bloodlines of nationhood. Inter-ethnic conflict and genocide have demonstrated the dangers of failing to protect people targeted by fellow citizens. When minority groups in one country are targeted for killings or ethnic cleansing based on their group identity, whose responsibility is it to protect them? In particular, are they owed any protective responsibility by their kin-state? How can cross-border kinship ties strengthen greater pan-national identity across borders without challenging territorially defined national security? As shown by the Russia–Georgia conflict over South

Ossetia, unilateral intervention by a kin-state can lead to conflict within and between states.

The world cannot stand by when minority rights are being trampled, but the protection of national minorities should not be used as an excuse to violate state sovereignty and generate inter-state conflict. This book suggests that a sensible answer to the kin-state dilemma might come from the formula “neither intervention nor indifference” that recognizes the special bonds but proscribes armed intervention based on the ties of kinship.

Fixing Haiti
MINUSTAH and Beyond

EDITED BY JORGE HEINE AND ANDREW S. THOMPSON

Haiti may well be the only country in the Americas with a last name. References to the land of the “black Jacobins” are almost always followed by the phrase “the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere”. To that dubious distinction, on 12 January 2010 Haiti added another, when it was hit by the most devastating natural disaster in the Americas, a 7.0 Richter scale earthquake. More than 220,000 people lost their lives and much of its vibrant capital, Port-au-Prince, was reduced to rubble. Since 2004, the United Nations has been in Haiti through MINUSTAH, in an ambitious attempt to help Haiti raise itself by its bootstraps. This effort has now acquired additional urgency. Is Haiti a failed state? Does it deserve a Marshall-plan-like programme? What will it take to address the Haitian predicament? In this book, some of the world’s leading experts on Haiti examine the challenges faced by the first black republic, the tasks undertaken by the UN, and the new role of hemispheric players such as Argentina, Brazil and Chile, as well as that of Canada, France and the United States.

Keeping Watch
Monitoring, Technology and Innovation in UN Peace Operations

BY A. WALTER DORN
WITH A FOREWORD BY ROMÉO A. DALLAIRE

Knowledge is power. In the hands of the UN peacekeepers it can be a power for peace. Lacking knowledge, peacekeepers often find themselves powerless in the field, unable to protect themselves and others. The United Nations owes it to its peacekeepers and the “peacekept” to utilize all available tools to make its monitoring and surveillance effective.

Keeping Watch explains how technologies can increase the range, effectiveness and accuracy of UN observation. Satellites, aircraft and ground sensors enable wider coverage of areas, over longer periods of time, while decreasing intrusiveness. These devices can transmit and record imagery for wider dissemination, further analysis, and as evidence in human rights cases and tribunals. They also allow observation at a safe distance from dangerous areas, especially in advance of UN patrols, humanitarian convoys or robust forces. Sensor technologies have been increasing exponentially in performance while decreasing rapidly in price but the United Nations continues to use technologies from the 1980s. The few cases of technologies effectively harnessed in the field are identified.

This book identifies potential problems and pitfalls with modern technologies and the challenges of incorporating them into the UN system. It offers creative recommendations on how to overcome institutional inertia and the widespread misunderstanding of the ways in which technology can improve security in war-torn regions. Above all, it shows how technological innovation can serve as a complement to human initiative in the quest for peace.

“This book might be a beacon for the use of modern technology in peacekeeping operations at a time when the UN seeks to overcome the complex challenges it faces in the field.”
—Col. Zbigniew Szlek, Senior Military Adviser, Permanent Mission of Poland to the United Nations

“This book is the newest contribution—an absolutely essential, practical, and inspiring contribution to help create a prosperous world at peace.”

Sustainability Science
A Multidisciplinary Approach
EDITED BY HIROSHI KOMIYAMA, KAZUHIKO TAKEUCHI, HIDEAKI SHIROYAMA AND TAKASHI MINO

Sustainability Science

Sustainability science is a new academic discipline that has emerged in response to threats to the sustainability of the global environment. The purpose of this discipline is to help build a sustainable society by developing solutions to climate change, the exhaustion of resources, ecological destruction and other environmental crises that threaten the future of humanity. Sustainability science demands a realignment of existing academic disciplines. Whereas academia has moved inexorably in the direction of fragmentation into discrete fields of in-depth specialization, sustainability science seeks comprehensive, integrated solutions to complex problems and therefore requires a restructuring of education and research that spans multiple disciplines. This volume offers diverse approaches to the development of a transdisciplinary perspective that embraces the natural, social and human sciences in the quest for a sustainable society.

Climate Change and Global Sustainability
A Holistic Approach
EDITED BY AKIMASA SUMI, NOBUO MIMURA AND TOSHIHIKO MASUI

Sustainability Science

Climate change owing to global warming is a paramount concern for society in the twenty-first century, and it is not an issue that can be solved by individual academic or scientific disciplines working in isolation. Because climate change involves a wide range of interlinked problems, solutions must be pursued in an interdisciplinary manner. This book adopts just such a holistic approach in examining various aspects of global warming, and offers readers a comprehensive overview.

First, the mapping of knowledge about global warming is presented as a framework for addressing the issue. This is followed by a discussion of risk in relation to global warming and of the communication of risk between academia and society. Impacts, adaptation strategies, the institution of a low-carbon society and a number of other policy concerns associated with climate change are then reviewed. Because human behaviour is a critical factor in the move towards a low-carbon society, issues involving quality of life are also presented, with an emphasis on philosophy. Finally, the book considers the integration of three scenarios for society—a low-carbon society, a resource-circulating society, and a society in harmony with nature—and presents a comprehensive vision of the future.
Establishing a Resource-Circulating Society in Asia
Challenges and Opportunities
EDITED BY TOHRU MORIOKA, KEISUKE HANAKI AND YUICHI MORIGUCHI
Sustainability Science

This book addresses the wide range of issues associated with sustainable resource-circulating societies. It has a particular focus on Asia, where both population growth and economic growth are increasingly prominent in the global context. The authors examine theories and visions pertinent to resource-circulating societies, as well as relevant practices and initiatives at all levels—national, local and industrial—and through urban–rural linkages. They also propose an integrative approach combining the concepts of a resource-circulating society and a low-carbon society, both of which constitute fundamental components of a sustainable society.

Designing Our Future
Local Perspectives on Bioproduction, Ecosystems and Humanity
EDITED BY MITSURU OSAKI, ADEMOLA K. BRAIMOH AND KEN’ICHI NAKAGAMI
Sustainability Science

This volume focuses primarily on society at the local and regional levels and on a scenario in which human beings coexist harmoniously with nature. This ideal society is examined in terms of the relationship between villages or towns and their natural environment and how these villages and towns can achieve local or regional independence in the face of pressures toward centralization and globalization. This requires both food and energy independence; hence farms, villages and towns must have access to natural renewable energy and material circulation systems. There also needs to be a system to facilitate collaboration among the various elements. To enable communities to retain their autonomy in the long term, public awareness of the importance of fostering local cultures and traditions is vital. Cultural independence demands that local ways of thinking be steered away from the “plunder nature” model toward “coexistence with nature”. With economic globalization spearheading a trend toward standardization and uniformity in human values, this book highlights the importance of developing a society in harmony with nature through the networking of diverse communities to promote and achieve local independence.
Usable Thoughts
Climate, Water and Weather in the Twenty-first Century
MICHAEL H. GLANTZ AND QIAN YE
Short quotations are often used to stimulate thought and evoke discussion. The intention of this book is no less ambitious. Drawing upon a series of quotations taken from the World Meteorological Organization-sponsored publication, Climate: Into the 21st Century, the authors set out to encourage thought and discussion on the earth’s climate system, including its interrelatedness to human society and the environment, the impact of climate variability, and climate extremes and change.

Vulnerability in Developing Countries
EDITED BY WIM NAUDÉ, AMELIA U. SANTOS-PAULINO AND MARK McGILLIVRAY
“In a world characterized by increasing risks at the micro and macro levels, understanding the determinants of vulnerability is at the cutting edge of poverty research and policy. This volume is a most timely contribution to helping understand how households, economies and states in the developing world are affected by risks and shocks, and what coping mechanisms might help to mitigate this vulnerability.” —Stephan Klasen, Professor of Economics and Coordinator of the Courant Research Center “Poverty, Equity, and Growth in Developing and Transition Countries”, University of Göttingen

Early Warning Systems for Climate-, Water- and Weather-Related Hazards
EDITED BY MICHAEL H. GLANTZ
Heads Up! provides a useful review of early warning systems in operation today, while exploring a range of hazards including hurricanes, heat waves, floods, droughts, tsunami and volcanoes. With contributions from an international team of scientists, this practical handbook serves as a valuable contribution to our awareness and understanding of the role early warning systems play in disaster avoidance and reduction.

HIV/AIDS in Sub-Saharan Africa
Understanding the Implications of Culture & Context
EDITED BY JEAN BAXEN AND ANDERS BREIDLID

HIV/AIDS in Sub-Saharan Africa avoids a simplistic approach to the pandemic, by exploring the complex and sometimes contradictory spaces in which HIV/AIDS discourses are negotiated, and thus goes some way to present a more hermeneutic profile of the HIV/AIDS problem. HIV/AIDS in Sub-Saharan Africa is as much about identity construction as it is about HIV/AIDS. The authors recognize the interrelatedness of sex, sexuality, identity and HIV/AIDS in the shaping of individual and collective identities and have thus gone beyond merely asking questions about what people know.

Which Way Latin America?
Hemispheric Politics Meets Globalization
EDITED BY ANDREW F. COOPER AND JORGE HEINE
WITH A FOREWORD BY ABRAHAM F. LOWENTHAL

“This excellent collection focuses on the dynamic interaction between Latin America and a fast-changing global system. Chapters expertly analyze crucial dimensions of this interaction, including democracy and the ‘rise of the left’, energy competition and resource nationalism, relations with China and India, the fraying of the Inter-American System, and such pivotal cases as Venezuela, Mexico, and Brazil. Contributors unpack both the impact of the world in and on the region, and the ever more complex and diversified relationship between the region and the world.”

Envisioning Reform
Enhancing UN Accountability in the Twenty-first Century
EDITED BY SUMIHIRO KUYAMA AND MICHAEL ROSS FOWLER
WITH A FOREWORD BY KONRAD OSTERWALDER

“The subject of accountability warrants much more serious attention in the context, in particular, of global governance wherein the organizations in the UN system are to play a pivotal role. This book is a timely and valuable contribution toward this objective.”

—Martti Ahtisaari,
Nobel Peace Prize Laureate,
former President of the Republic of Finland,
and Chairman of the Crisis Management Initiative

The contributors to this volume identify key issues, raise pertinent questions and suggest directions for reforms regarding accountability in the context of the United Nations system.

Sexed Pistols
The Gendered Impacts of Small Arms and Light Weapons
EDITED BY VANESSA FARR, HENRI MYRTTINEN AND ALBRECHT SCHNABEL
Contributors to Sexed Pistols draw on experience and research from around the world on the nexus of gender, age, violence and small arms in developing and developed countries. Their findings feed into a number of recommendations for future policy formulation, programme implementation and research designed to further illuminate and counteract the firings of the “sexed pistol”.

New Perspectives on Liberal Peacebuilding
EDITED BY EDWARD NEWMAN, ROLAND PARIS AND OLIVER P. RICHMOND
This book applies “critical” analysis to the study of peacebuilding, exploring the implications of peacebuilding activities for broader debates about power, legitimacy and international order. New Perspectives on Liberal Peacebuilding also takes the debate beyond the realms of liberal Western academia by involving scholars and analysts from conflict-prone and post-conflict societies.
“A timely and extremely valuable book by a distinguished group of authors that critically examines the liberal premises of contemporary peacebuilding efforts through a combination of incisive thematic analysis and well-chosen case studies. A ‘must read’ for scholars and practitioners alike.”

African Security Governance
Emerging Issues
EDITED BY GAVIN CAWTHRA
The broad focus of this book is security governance—the role of the state and a wide range of social actors in the areas of both human and state security. It deals with a range of sectors, themes and national case studies and makes an important contribution to debates on security sector reform. The topics covered include policing transformation, intelligence governance, regulation of private security actors, challenges of nuclear proliferation, regional security, peace diplomacy and peace missions, the relationship between development and security and new challenges in governance of the military. Written by scholars as well as practitioners, and African as well as international researchers, it brings a variety of insights to new as well as traditional security concerns.

United Nations Justice
Legal and Judicial Reform in Governance Operations
CALIN TRENKOV-WERMUTH

At the end of the twentieth century, and at the dawn of the twenty-first, the United Nations was tasked with the administration of justice in territories placed under its executive authority, an undertaking for which there was no established precedent or doctrine. Examining the UN’s legal and judicial reform efforts in Kosovo and East Timor, this volume argues that rather than helping to establish a sustainable legal system, the UN’s approach detracted from it, as it confused ends with means.

“Extensively researched and powerfully argued, United Nations Justice is a penetrating criticism of past efforts to bring the rule of law to conflict-ridden countries and an inspiring effort to identify better practices that can help the UN assist those countries in the creation of a sustainable peace.”

Human Rights Regimes in the Americas
EDITED BY MÓNICA SERRANO AND VESSELIN POPOVSKI

Human Rights Regimes in the Americas examines the complex role of human rights norms and standards in the region’s progression, illustrating the evolution and impact of international conventions, laws and institutions.

“At last, we have a quality overview of human rights progress and challenges in the Americas. This volume fills a crucial gap in the literature, allowing us to assess the complex and fascinating human rights ebb and flow that has been the experience of Latin America, including the often contradictory role of the United States as champion and obstacle.”

—Richard Falk, Albert G. Milbank Professor Emeritus of International Law at Princeton University, and Visiting Distinguished Professor in Global and International Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

Democracy in the South
Participation, the State and the People
EDITED BY BRENDA HOWE, VESSELIN POPOVSKI AND MARK NOTARAS

Traditionally, studies on democracy have focused on the orthodox so-called Northern models of democratic governance, and within this framework, the extent to which Southern models are considered democratic. Democracy in the South is the first truly international collaboration that draws attention to the complex problems of democratic consolidation across the majority world.

“In this valuable new book, scholars from the regions concerned explain the theory and practice of democracy away from the familiar Western world. As such, the book will be useful to students and scholars of comparative as much as international politics for presenting voices from the South about the challenges of consolidating democracy in developing countries.”

SHIPPING & HANDLING

TOTAL

When ordering from UNU Press, please note:

Shipping and handling
For domestic (Japan-based) orders, add 500 yen for the first book and 300 yen for each additional book. For international orders, add US$12.00 for the first book and US$6.00 for each additional book. Special shipping and handling rates are available for bulk orders.

Discounted prices are available for customers in developing countries. Please contact UNU Press for details.

Payment can be made by bank transfer in US dollars or Japanese yen or by credit card (MasterCard/Visa). Credit card payments will be charged in Japanese yen.

To ensure secure credit card transactions, please do not send credit card details by e-mail.

Payment must be received before an order can be shipped.

All prices and availability dates are subject to change without notice.

Prices, Discounts, Special Shipping and Handling

All prices are quoted in US dollars. Prices are subject to change without notice. Special shipping instructions can usually be accommodated and these will be charged on an individual basis. Discounts are offered to wholesalers, retailers and agents. Please contact us for more information (sales@unu.edu).

Claims

All claims for shortages or damaged items and requests for proof of delivery must be made within 30 days of receipt. Claims regarding payments and non-receipt of orders must be made within 30 days of receipt of invoice.

All claims must be submitted by fax (+81-3-3406-7345) or e-mail (sales@unu.edu).

Examination Copies

United Nations University Press is pleased to provide complimentary examination (review) copies of any title in our catalogue for consideration for course adoption. Please contact us directly for further details (sales@unu.edu). All requests should contain information about the institution making the request, the name of the person teaching the course, the name of the course and date of commencement, and the expected number of copies required should a book be adopted. In addition, we require the name of the bookstore that would place the order should a title be adopted.

Please allow approximately two weeks for processing and delivery. All requests are subject to availability and approval.

Media Review Copies

Complimentary review copies are made available upon request at the discretion of United Nations University Press. However, we require details of any review to be published in the initial request and we request a copy of all reviews be sent to us either prior to or upon publication. Please send to:
