UNESCO Director-General Bokova to Speak at UNU on “Climate Change and Education” During Her First Official Visit to Japan

Event: Public Symposium
Theme: “Climate Change and Education: UNESCO’s Role in the 2010s”
Date: 11 June 2010 (Fri.), 10:00 AM – 12:00 noon
Venue: U Thant International Conference Hall, UN University Headquarters, Tokyo
Co-organizers: United Nations University (UN University); Japan Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MOFA); Japan Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT); Japanese National Commission for UNESCO

- If humanity is to deal with climate change in a significant, realistic and sustainable manner, it is vital that we acknowledge the role of education. Climate change issues must be incorporated into each country’s core educational curricula, and institutions of higher education must promote the accumulation of relevant scientific knowledge and expertise and support the development of adaptive technologies.
- As a UN agency specializing in education, science and culture, UNESCO has launched a climate change initiative through which it supports investigation and research in such areas as advancing knowledge about climate change, preserving the biosphere, coping with the social aspects of climate change, and minimizing disaster risks — in particular, from the perspective of Education for Sustainable Development (ESD).
- This public symposium on “Climate Change and Education: UNESCO’s Role in the 2010s” will feature:
 - a keynote presentation by Irina Bokova, Director-General of UNESCO, and
 - a panel discussion by Ms. Won Jung Byun (RCE Tongyeong) and Dr. Hirofumi Abe (Okayama University).
- Simultaneous English–Japanese interpretation will be provided. For those unable to attend, the symposium will be webcast live (and archived) at <http://videoportal.unu.edu/event/64>.

Media representatives are cordially invited to attend. To reserve a media space at this public symposium, please contact Naoko Yano, UNU Office of Communications (tel: 03-5467-1311; e-mail: media@unu.edu).
